Reclink Transformers end the year on a high note

14 January 2016

The "I Like To Sing" concert was the final performance for the choir for 2015 and was a great success. The concert was held on a warm Sunday afternoon in December at the beautiful Queensland Terrace at State Library of Queensland. The State Library Queensland have been long term supporters of The Transformers and the choir was privileged to have the use of their venue.

The choir was supported by Good Company, an a cappella vocal group. This group, directed by Erin Murphy includes some of Brisbane's finest singers, including Transformers own Musical Director, Rosalind Perry. It was a great set and a wonderful opening to the afternoon.

Following Good Company were a few solo spots from the Transformers team including choir accompanist Dave Crane and volunteer Robert Ahoon.

The energy was lifted further when the choir took to the stage for heartfelt and enjoyable set. To close the show, the choir was then joined by Good Company for one of their newer songs, "Small Things", written by the members of the Transformers. It was an exciting ending to a very successful day and year.
